Understanding Pay Structures and Compensation Systems

Presented by Wes Pruett

Having a competitive and well-designed compensation system is the cornerstone of employee recruitment and retention for most organizations. But did you know that 30 percent of U.S. companies have no formal pay structure in place? And that number increases for small businesses- 50 percent of companies with 100 employees or less are lacking a proper compensation system. When you have an ill-designed or inadequate pay system in place, you are more vulnerable to losing your top talent to employers who do. It's usually your most talented employees who become frustrated if salary discussions are not addressed and handled professionally. Having a solid compensation structure in place is critical if you want your employees to feel secure in their compensation and career.
