Weeding Out The Bad Candidates: Best Practices for Sourcing, Resume Review, and Pre-Screening

Presented by Bill Humbert

Save time and money with these effective prescreening tips and tricks from an active recruiter.

Many human resource professionals are under intense pressure to perform their jobs without adequate training, especially in the sales arena called recruiting or talent acquisition. This topic will supply human resource professionals with the training required to create a solid foundation for their talent acquisition process. Using this process of sourcing and pre-screening, the company will be able to recruit and select top candidates.

Recruiting for Hard to Fill Positions (Easiest Isn't Always Best)

Presented by Bill Humbert

Generally, staff within most companies will open a position without investigating why the previous person left to determine the root cause. Was the Job Description poorly written so sourcing identified the wrong talent? Was the manager inept? Did the incumbent get promoted? Wouldn't it be nice to learn/review ways to look at the Recruiting Process to find the elusive passive candidate instead of the over-posting desperate candidate? The purpose of this webinar is to help your company identify and deliver the best-qualified candidate by learning and applying proven recruiting processes.

Principles for Hiring GREAT People

Presented by David Rohlander

People are the primary resource and solution to all of your goals and dreams. It all starts with your ability to hire great people. The better you get at hiring, the better everything turns out.

Great people are the single best asset/resource of a successful business. With great people, you have innovation, creativity, enthusiasm, quality, responsiveness, and results. Together these produce profits. When you hire less than great people you inhibit the ability and attitude of the entire organization. It is like having a severe cold, headache or pain in the stomach. The wrong people in an organization slow it down, cause confusion and prevent the achievement of great goals.

Reignite Recruiting: 9 Ways to Incorporate Diversity Strategies at Work

Presented by Stacey A. Gordon

The demographics of the workforce are changing and companies are struggling to keep up with the challenges that can be caused by ignoring this elephant in the room. Are you an employer of choice? If not, why not? From reputation management to recruiting to employee engagement, this workshop will help you identify the many areas in which your decision -making process are unintentionally impacted by bias, as well as ways to increase workforce retention.

Research shows that diversity & inclusion is a competitive advantage and it is especially important to embed diversity into decisions that impact talent management functions. If culture is like a completed puzzle, diversity represents the individual pieces of that puzzle, and the fit is what happens when you bring those dimensions of diversity together. Therefore, diversity recruiting is the process by which you expand your usual and familiar recruiting paths to actively engage and be more open and accepting of candidates who, we may at first glance overlook.
