Webinar Description

The U.S. Government requires exporters to be familiar with export laws and regulations as well as documentation for a number of different reasons, including national security, control of products in short supply, compiling export statistics, administration of export laws, protection of endangered species, and to protect U.S. export markets by ensuring product quality of specific exports.

Exporting from the United States requires exporters to be aware of numerous U.S. export regulations. Unfortunately, the United States does not have a unified set of export laws and regulations. For this reason, attendees will learn about the Foreign Trade Regulations, the Export Administration Regulations, and the International Traffic In Arms Regulations.

The average international shipment involves dozens of separate documents. The specific documents required for any given U.S. export shipment depend on U.S. Government regulations, destination country's import regulations, importer's requirements, terms of sale, method of payment, and mode of transportation.

Attendees will be introduced to various U.S. export regulations and documents. You will learn how to begin navigating through and around all sorts of export obstacles. You will also learn about how to access all sorts of free export resources.

Why Should Attend ?

There are always critical areas of exporting that you, a new or experienced exporter, may be confused about or be clueless of that can cause true grief, which may be experienced via outbound shipment delays, detentions and seizures; huge penalties and fines; bad publicity; and even arrest and U.S. Government prosecution. Increased U.S. federal law enforcement activity by such agencies as the Bureau of Industry and Security, U.S. Customs and Border Protection, U.S. Customs and Immigration Enforcement, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to name just several agencies, that can hamper or destroy your ability to export. Remember that no one has a right to export. You have the privilege of exporting if you play by the rules. Learn the rules, set yourself up accordingly, and prosper in the exporting industry.
