

Webinar on

Accountability In The Workplace

Learning Objectives

Know when to have an accountability conversation, and take the steps you need to prepare for it.

Practise the best way to create a “safe zone” for conversations that are real, gain agreement on desired results and holds others accountable for the future.

Develop the C-R-I-T-I-C-A-L skills of addressing the accountability gap in others.

This webinar is designed to provide hands on, practical strategies and skills for successfully holding others accountable at work.

PRESENTED BY:

Dennis Eisenbarth is an adult educator, trainer and business leader. He has a Masters degree in Adult Education and has worked with hundreds of groups to engage and encourage their success. His courses and consulting are designed to facilitate change, improve performance, and achieve growth.

On-Demand Webinar

Duration : 60 Minutes

Price: $200

Webinar Description

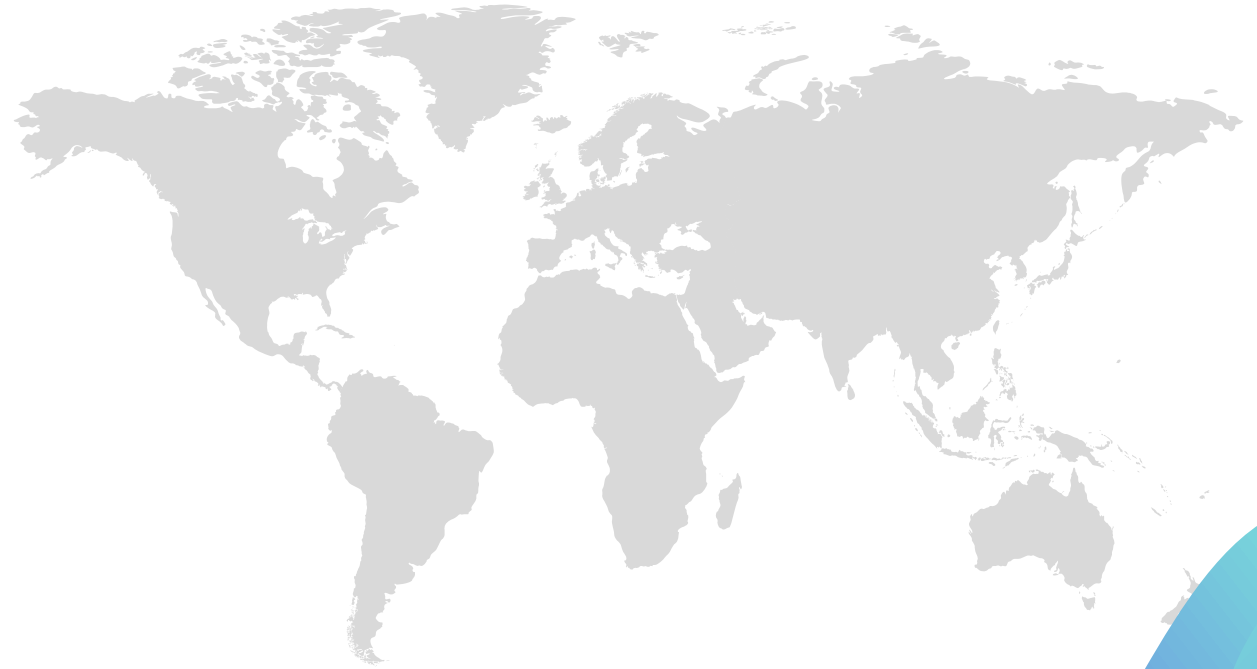

Accountability for our actions seems to be in short supply these days. From large corporations, to governments, to workplace teams, we have lost our need to be accountable...to almost anyone. Lack of accountability has become very costly. This webinar is designed to provide hands on, practical strategies and skills for successfully holding others accountable at work.

Research unfortunately indicates that we rarely hold each other accountable, even at work! We too often convince ourselves that an accountability discussion will actually make things worse! But it has also been proven that the most effective organizations take steps to ensure accountability at all levels.

Who Should Attend ?

This webinar is designed especially for supervisors and managers who need to address performance gaps in those they work with.

To register please visit:

www.grceducators.com
support@grceducators.com
740 870 0321