Webinar Description

Sometimes hospitals fall for a complicated re-do of medical staff documents that fall apart after the consultants leave the building. Or the medical staff bylaws have developed into a patchwork quilt of quick-fix additions created to respond to a plan of correction or accreditation survey report. Even updated bylaws can be improved by isolating processes to expose inefficiencies and inconsistencies.

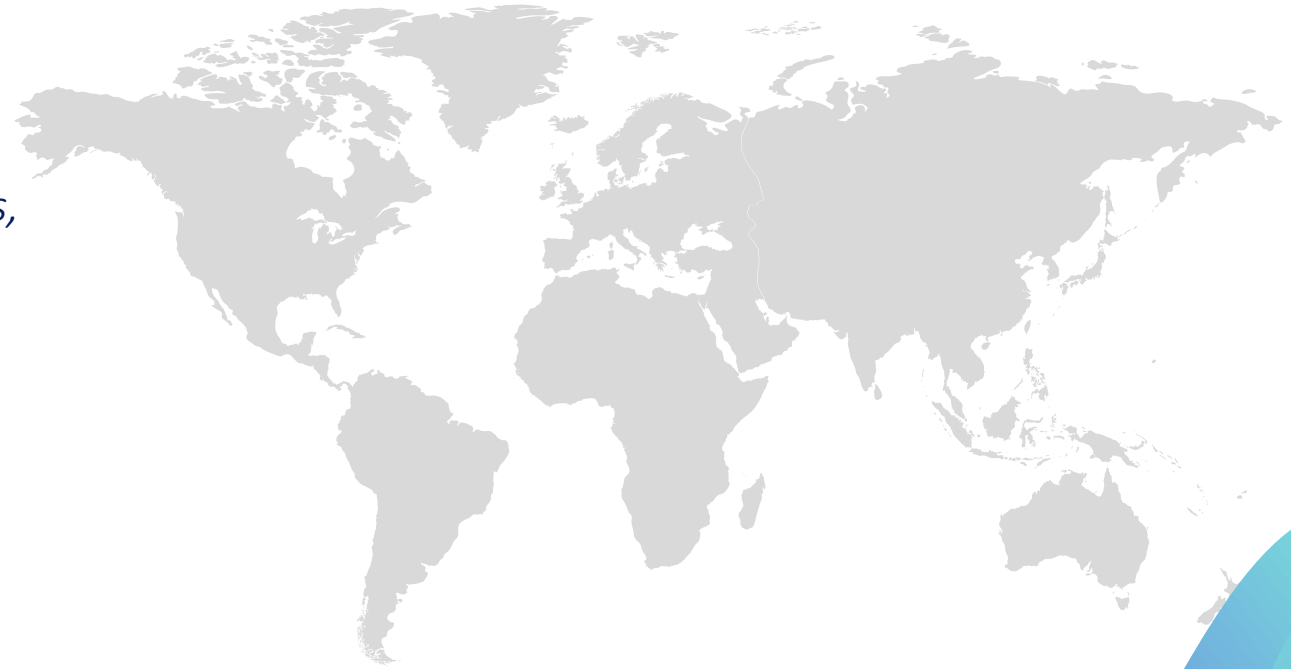

This webinar will present case studies of basic medical staff operations made unduly complicated by clumsy medical staff bylaws, and how medical staff bylaws can be corrected to work better for the medical staff—while still complying with state and federal law and regulation, and Joint Commission accreditation standards.

Hospital Medical Staff Bylaws are required by state law and national accreditation standards and must be maintained and updated for effective day to day operations.

Why Should Attend ?
