

Webinar on

Mediating Construction Disputes – How To Be Successful

Learning Objectives

- Understand the role of the mediator in this process*
- Learn why mediation so often leads to settlement even though previous negotiations failed*
- Compare mediation to other forms of ADR*
- Learn how to effectively prepare for mediation*
- Learn how to effectively participate in mediation*
- And, learn what to do after the mediation agreement is attained*

Mediation is not new. Mediation was employed in ancient India as well as in the Islamic world.

PRESENTED BY:

James Zack is the Senior Advisor, Ankura Construction Forum™ – the construction industry's global resource for thought leadership and best practices on avoidance and resolution of construction project disputes globally.

On-Demand Webinar

Duration : 90 Minutes

Price: $200

Webinar Description

Mediation is not new. Mediation was employed in ancient India as well as in the Islamic world. In more recent times mediation has been widely adopted in the U.S. construction industry as a form of Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR). Mediation is often employed when claims negotiations fail to reach a resolution in lieu of arbitration or litigation. The webinar discusses mediation as a process and discusses why construction professionals need to learn about mediation. The webinar identifies some good and bad points concerning mediation. Additionally, the webinar offers a number of practical suggestions on how to prepare for and be successful in mediation.

Arbitration and litigation are very lengthy and expensive. Mediation is a good alternative form of dispute resolution – one where the parties structure and control the process and the outcome. This webinar focuses on how to prepare for and achieve an acceptable resolution of construction disputes.

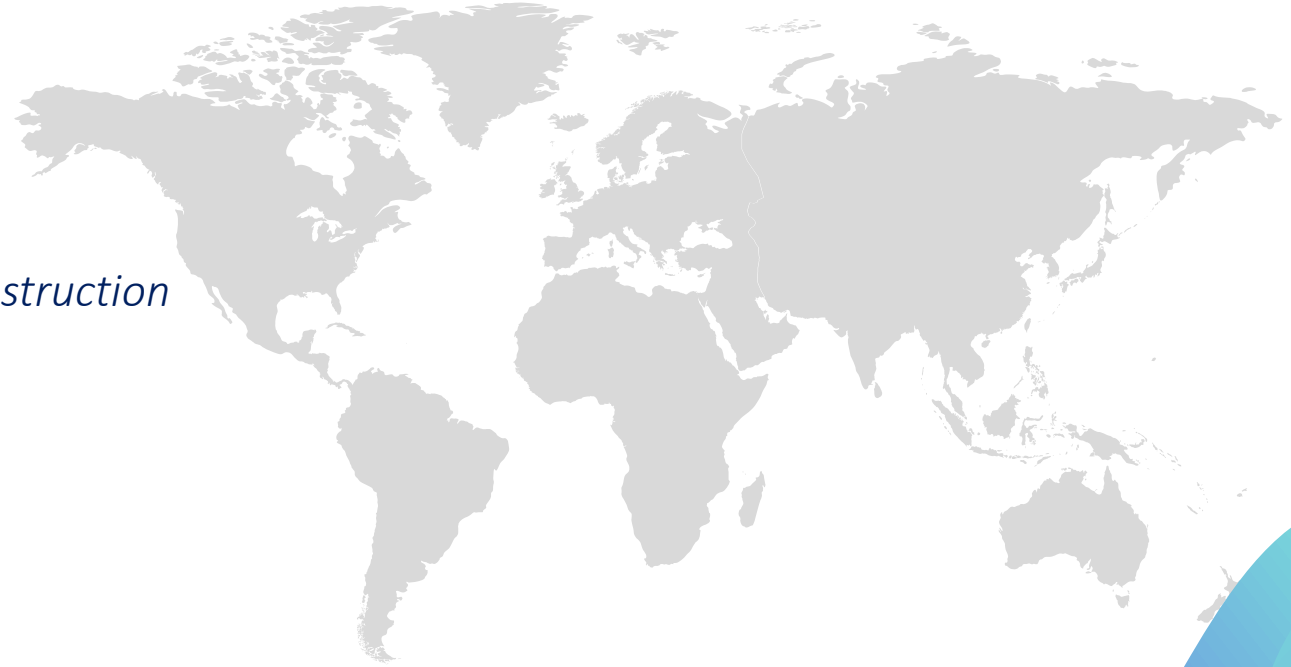

Who Should Attend ?

Owners and their representatives

Construction Managers

Contractors

Design Professionals providing services during construction

Why Should Attend ?

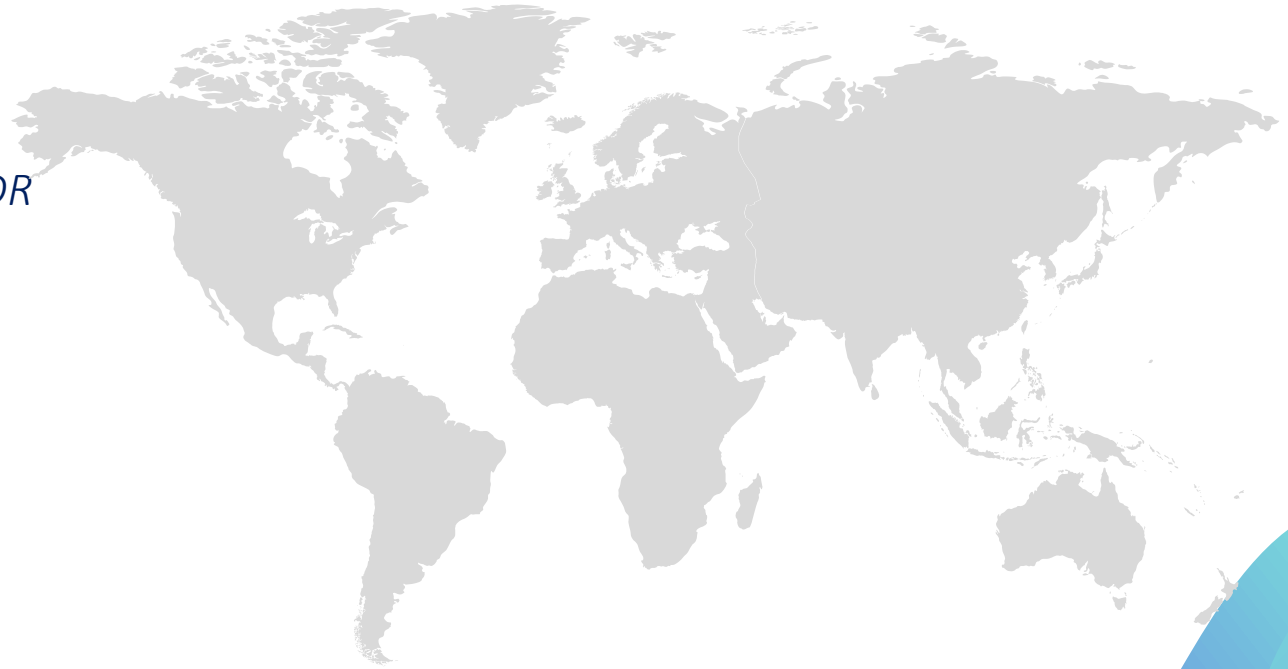

Gain a better understanding of why construction professionals may want to use mediation as an ADR process when dealing with unresolved claims

Identify the strengths and weaknesses of the mediation process

Learn the importance of and how to prepare for mediation

Understand how mediators operate at mediation

Discover how to function while in the mediation session

To register please visit:

www.grceducators.com
support@grceducators.com
740 870 0321